ARDENTLY, ārdentli, Ard-Ent-El; rs, Ard-Ent-(El).
ARE [add].
Rem. 1. Are, in phrase-writing, is frequently expressed by Ray; but when written alone, and generally when commencing phrase-signs, the most convenient sign is Ar. It is the most convenient also because of allowing shortening for the derivative sign-word Ar, and lengthening for the addition of thr. See Dhr in the body of this work. It would not be allowable to shorten Ray for ar; and if allowable, the sign would not be suggestive. In Standard Phonography it would be allowable to lengthen Ray for are thr, but Raydher, though allowable used after another word for these words, would not, when alone, be so suggestive as Ardher, nor so convenient for joining with a following word. Therefore, the general use of Ray for are, when standing alone, can not be approved.

HATTED, hat'ed, Hay-Ted; rs, (Hay)-Ted.

HAUGHTY [add] (HAUGHTIER, ho'tier, Hay-Tee-Ar; HAUGHTIEST, ho'tiest, Hay-Tee-si.)

HAVE [add]. See Have in the Index of the Second Standard-Phonographic Reader.

Rem. 1. (a.) Under § 249 of the Compendium Have may be omitted before Been and Done in the corresponding style even, when it can not be more clearly or easily expressed by an Ehook. (b.) There is no difficulty in supplying Have preceding ANY past participle whose outline differs from that of the past tense (or time) as do the following:

Arisen,	Been,	Borne,	Done,
Awaked,	Bitten,	Broken,	Drawn,
Beaten,	Blown,	Chosen,	Driven,

Eaten, Hidden, Shown, Sworn,
 Fallen, Known, Slain, Taken,
 Flown, Laden, Smitten, Thrown,
 Forsaken, Lain, Sown, Told,
 Frozen, Risen, Spoken, Torn,
 Gone, Seen, Stolen, Woven,
 Crown, Shaken, Striven, Written.

Rem. 2. Have after I.—When the Vee-hook of Tetoid<sup>1</sup> (for I have) will prevent the formation of a desirable phrase-sign, the hook (for have) may be omitted, and have be supplied by aid of the context, especially if it be made a rule that Tetoid<sup>1</sup> for I is followed by have, WHENEVER SOME OTHER DIRECTION OF THE I-TICK MIGHT HAVE BEEN AS CONVENIENTLY EMPLOYED. For instance, in Tetoid<sup>1</sup>-Lay-Ved (I have lived), Tetoid should be read I have, because I alone might have been more conveniently represented by Petoid<sup>1</sup>. But in I would (Tetoid<sup>1</sup>-Wuh) and I should (Tetoid<sup>1</sup>-Retoid), I is most conveniently represented by Tetoid. (b.) Of course, when it conveniently can be, Have should be written after I as after other words, as indicated by the preceding remark (Rem. 1, c).

IN [add]—

Rem. 1. In, with or without an article (a-n or the), may be prefixed to a word in its natural position; thus, In secret, or In a (or the) secret, In-Skret<sup>1</sup>; In sacred, or In a (or the) sacred, In-Skred<sup>2</sup>; In (the) security, In-Skret<sup>3</sup>; In similar, In-Sem<sup>1</sup>; In some, or In the same, In-Sem<sup>2</sup>; In spirit, or In a (or the) spirit, In-Spret<sup>1</sup>; In a separate, In-Spret<sup>2</sup>; In (or In the) toleration, In[like Yuh made backward]-Tler<sup>2</sup>; In telling, In-Tel<sup>2</sup>; 'ing'; In settlement, In-Iss-Tel<sup>2</sup>-Ment; In civil, or In a (or the) civil, In(or En)-Svel<sup>1</sup>; In (the) consideration, In-Sder-shon<sup>2</sup>; In construction, or In a (or the) construction, In-Ster-shon<sup>2</sup>; In the extraction, In-Ster-shon<sup>3</sup>. See Comp., p. 168, R. 10, where this principle is explained.

Rem. 2. In his, or In as may be prefixed to a word in its natural position by an In-hook and a circle (or by enlarging a circle); thus, *In*s-Kershon<sup>2</sup>, in his erection; *In*s-Preus<sup>1</sup>, in his appearance;

See other phrases of this kind below, and under In in the body of this Dictionary.

Rem. 3. In En- (ins- o is-, or uns-) — By turning a circle on the back of En an In-hook may be implied; because a single en-, in-, o -, or un- is always represented by an In-hook whenever a circle would have to be turned on the back of the En-stroke if that were used; thus, In-Spret<sup>1</sup>, in spirit; In-Skret<sup>3</sup>, insecurity; In-Slay-Vee, ensave; In-Sem-Lay, unseemly; In-Slet<sup>1</sup>, onslaught. (b.) Hence, En<sup>1</sup>-Iss[on the back of En]-Sperd, may be read In inspired, or In an (or the) inspired, or *Un*inspired. See Unenslaved, Uninspired, Uninspired, etc.

(c.) This plan of prefixing the circle-signword was introduced as a part of the Author's improvements on the Old Phonography, and was first explained on p. 182, R. 4, of the Compendium.
